

Lyle Bunn to serve as NEC “Best of InfoComm Award” Judge.

Itasca, IL - March 2010. NEC has again named Lyle Bunn as a judge in the NEC “ Best of InfoComm” Awards, which recognizes innovation by partners of NEC Display Solutions with an award of $25,000 donated to the charity of the winner’s choice.

Lyle Bunn serves on the judging panel of the annual DIGI Awards, has Chaired the judging panel of the Digital Signage Forum “Digital Signage Persons of the Year” as well as other product, content and network awards.

Nominations from InfoComm exhibitors will be accepted at <http://www.necdisplay.com/best/> through April 30, 2010. . Public voting for the best entry will occur May 1, 2010, through June 4, 2010. The five entries with the most online votes will be announced at NEC Booth No. N903 on the first day of the conference. The “best of InfoComm” will then be selected from the finalists by the panel of impartial industry experts for announcement and award recognition on June 11 by NEC Display Solutions President and C.O.O. Pierre Richer.

The winner of the inaugural award in 2009 was Da-Lite Screen Company. The AV pioneer selected the Infocomm Education Foundation as its recipient and matched its prize money for a total donation of $50,000.